RESEARCH ON SOCIALLY IMPORTANT ISSUES

The UW scientists conduct research on socially important issues in cooperation with scientific centres all over the world. In addition to the flagship programmes under the 4EU+ Alliance, such projects include those implemented within the EIT Food – European Knowledge and Innovation Community in the food sector, which forms part of the European Institute of Innovation and Technology. The UW has been a member of EIT Food since 2016.

In 2018, the UW also initiated a project under the framework of yet another EU Knowledge and Innovation Community – EIT Climate, whose objective is to mitigate and adapt to the consequences of climate change. In 2019, the university was awarded the status of the project partner within the EIT Raw Materials.

“EXCELLENCE INITIATIVE – RESEARCH UNIVERSITY”

Following the competition of the Ministry of Science and Higher Education (currently Ministry of Education and Science) entitled “Excellence Initiative – Research University”, the University of Warsaw was granted research university status for 2020–2026.

The additional funding has boosted the development of 5 priority research areas and the execution of 70 measures specified in the application, including programmes supporting the development of employees, doctoral candidates and students.

DEVELOPMENT

The UW continues to pursue the following strategic objectives:

- strengthening its position as leading research centre in Poland,
- improving its international recognition,
- maintaining its high ranking among Central European universities and developing cooperation with the continent's top universities,
- continuing to have a strong impact on its environment, in particular by addressing socially significant research topics.

MULTI-ANNUAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN

The UW implements the multi-annual development plan "University of Warsaw 2016-2027". Its main objectives are:

- enhancing the potential of the humanities and social sciences, and integrating them into innovative experimental programmes,
- strengthening the international position of the University and increasing its role in fostering social and economic transformations.

In order to achieve these goals, the programme includes the construction of new buildings as well as the expansion and reconstruction of the existing facilities.

INTEGRATED DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

The year 2018 marked the commencement of implementation of the University's 4-year Integrated Development Programme (ZIP).

The programme is designed to support the comprehensive development of the university, and includes:

- the development of new fields of studies and modification of the existing curricula,
- enriching the range of the curricula, courses and scholarship programmes for doctoral candidates,
- the organisation of classes and training sessions to improve the skills of the UW students and employees,
- the development of the university management IT tools.
